

FLOOD SITUATION AT CINCINNATI

Is Much Worse Today in That Part of Ohio Valley.

58 FEET STAGE IS PASSED.

Great Distress Around Huntington, Catletburg and Other Towns—River Rising at Louisville.

Cincinnati, O., April 25.—The flood situation in this part of the Ohio valley is much worse today. It was expected that it would reach its limit today, and up the valley, and that it would not exceed 58 feet at Cincinnati, or 8 feet above the danger line. It passed the danger line yesterday afternoon, and the water is still rising. The rise here yesterday afternoon was at the average rate of one-half inch per hour, but during the night the average rate of rising increased owing to rising tributaries below the Kanawha, especially the Big Sandy, which had previously been falling. While the limit of the present flood may be reached today, it is feared the new conditions will keep the river at stationary until there might be a second flood. The worst conditions are reported at Huntington, Catletburg, Portsmouth, and the smaller places in that district have reached the point of great distress.

Since midnight the Ohio river here has risen seven feet of a foot. The stage at noon was 58.7 feet. As the river is still rising as far up as Catletburg, and the Kanawha at Charleston is again rising, the inference is reasonable that the rise here cannot be checked before tomorrow by which time it may reach a stage of 60 feet or over. The weather here is clear. Contrary to expectations, the Ohio river is still rising slowly at fronton.

RAISING AT LOUISVILLE.

Louisville, Ky., April 25.—The river at Louisville at 12 o'clock today registered 29.5 feet in the canal, according to the government gauge, this being 1.5 feet above the danger line. The river is still rising at about an inch an hour, but is expected to come to a standstill some time Friday afternoon or night. Kentucky river is falling all the way down.

THE SCHENANGO RECEDING.

Sharon, Pa., April 25.—The Shenango river reached its highest stage at midnight and is now receding. All danger from the flood has passed.

MAHONING BREAKS ALL RECORDS.

Youngstown, Ohio, April 25.—The Mahoning river this morning broke all records for high water, being 12 inches above the greatest flood ever known in the valley and is still rising an inch an hour. Through the city the river is a mile wide and has swept away everything loose within reach. The mounds at the water works have been working under water since last night and if a break down in the machinery occurs the city will be at the mercy of the elements. During the night the firemen were active with boats rescuing citizens from the submerged dwellings. The Pennsylvania freight cars, which were surrounded by water and traffic is blocked until the floods recede. During the night a washout occurred on the Erie between here and Sharon.

ALBERT T. PATRICK INDICTED.

Grand Jury Hands in a True Bill Against Him.

New York, April 25.—The indictment against Albert T. Patrick for murder in the first degree, was handed up today. Patrick is charged with the murder of W. M. Miller. There are three counts in the indictment.

Nippon Maru Sighted.

San Francisco, April 25.—The steamer Nippon Maru, from Hongkong and Yokohama, has just been sighted. Minister Conger is supposed to be a passenger. The steamer will go to quarantine and will probably not dock until this evening.

Dr. C. K. D. Tanner Buried.

London, April 25.—The remains of Dr. Charles K. D. Tanner were interred privately in Kensal Green cemetery this morning. Several hundred persons were present. The nationalists, who were expected to attend in force, were entirely excluded from the ceremony owing to a disagreement with the minister's sister, who privately advised the ceremony; later in the day large numbers of nationalists visited the grave, on which a wreath from Mr. Thomas Sexton and others were deposited.

Mark Thomas Hayes Hanged.

Uniontown, Pa., April 25.—Mark Thomas Hayes was hanged today. He walked to the scaffold unflinchingly, had nothing whatever to say, and refused religious consolation.

The crime which Hayes had committed was frequently referred to as "the murder without a motive" as Hayes and his victim, Wm. Lowdon, had been friends for years. On the night of July 3, 1899, Hayes, Lowdon, and some others were carousing at the Hill farm near Dunbar. A quarrel arose between Hayes and Lowdon. Hayes went home but soon returned with a shotgun, and with the words "I will allow no man to call me a coward," shot Lowdon dead. Hayes afterward claimed that he had no intention of killing Lowdon but was in the act of firing a Fourth of July salute when his gun was accidentally discharged. The plea of the defense was insanity and lack of motive.

A Brilliant Comet.

London, April 25.—Dispatches received from Cape Town and Sydney, N. S. W., this morning, report the appearance of a brilliant comet.

made you a prisoner, and who guarded you most of the time in the house and who walked down the street with you and held you by the back of the neck, was released were one and the same person," asked General Corwin.

"It was the same man," answered the witness.

"Who was the man?" asked General Corwin.

"The defendant here in this case," answered the witness.

From the point on, Callahan was referred to by name and no longer as the "dark man."

Callahan betrayed no emotion when the testimony began at the dark man. He was the subject, but a cynical smile played faintly over his features.

The boy testified that Callahan's mouth was as subtle as the dark man. At the time of the kidnapping, and that it was subtle when first arrested that it was not.

At 1:45 o'clock Attorney Haller, for the defense began the cross-examination of young Cudly.

The boy admitted that he had gone over the case with Gen. Corwin with reference to what he testified.

He again detailed the route traversed, as nearly as he could tell. He admitted that the only direct view he had of the dark man's face was when he first approached him, and admitted that at that time he was pretty badly scared.

He said he could not have identified Callahan from simply seeing him. He said the police told him they had a man there and wanted to see if he could identify the prisoner as the dark man. He said he identified Callahan principally by his voice, and said that he would not be able to identify him by his appearance alone.

In answer to the question the boy said he was certain of the identity of Callahan as he was of the identity of his father or mother.

He thought it hardly possible for there to be another voice like Callahan's. He said Callahan had a sort of a brogue, and gave a peculiar turn to some words, and when he talked there was not positive as to Callahan's identity at the close of the first interview in the chief's office, but after a second hearing was positive in his identity.

The state made a strong point against Callahan when John Rabbe, a young carpenter, living about a block from Callahan's place, testified that he saw him on the morning of the kidnapping, at 540 Handpoppleton avenue, was called to the stand. He testified to knowing Pat Crowe and that Crowe called at his house on the morning of the kidnapping, about twenty times between October 23rd, when the Kelleys moved there, and the time of kidnapping. He said Crowe always came to the door without stopping to knock. Witness said that he was working for Anthony Crowe, Pat's brother. Pat came there twice. Anthony told him that he was his brother Pat. The last time witness saw Pat Crowe at the Kelly house was December 14th, four days before the kidnapping.

No Mail on the Rio de Janeiro.

Washington, April 25.—The postmaster general today received a report from Supt. Robinson, of the United States post office at Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, that no mail from that place had been received since the last mail from that place was received on February 1st last. Inquiry through the imperial Japanese postal authorities showed that all mail received at Nagasaki that might have been forwarded by the steamer Santa Rosa had previously been dispatched by a military transport to the United States and none was sent by the Rio.

AMUSEMENTS.

"Nathan Hale" is the sort of play that boards of education everywhere would be justified in turning out the school children to see; it fairly pulsates with patriotic throbs, and the great audience which beheld it at the opera last night was kept keyed up almost to the fever point of enthusiasm in following its development. It is like a refreshing breath from country lanes as the pure atmosphere of a play such as this; there is no "problem" about it, no French raciness in the dialogue, no women with cloudy pasts or men with muddy presents—simply a charming, thrilling, patriotic play, genuinely American to the core.

As everyone knows, Mr. Fitch has built his play upon that pathetic incident of the great Revolution, the death of Nathan Hale, the American patriot spy. The author long ago established his right to the name of dramatist by his most playthings, and his work in Nathan Hale certainly does nothing to discredit his reputation. In Mr. Kyle and Miss Fitch found two men who must have embodied his ideal, both made deep impressions upon their audience last night. Mr. Kyle especially receiving an ovation upon his entrance and his wife's entrance was even more beautiful trophies ever offered.
